

THE WISDOM CORRIDOR PROJECT

AVONWORTH ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

Overview

Our Wisdom Corridor Project was uniquely linked to another initiative within our school, known as the World of Work. This program aids students in recognizing their individual strengths, utilizing John Holland's RIASEC framework (Realistic, Investigative, Artistic, Social, Enterprising, Conventional). Through our teacher and staff displays of wisdom, we emphasize these strengths, facilitating deeper connections between our students and staff.

“What we loved”

"As an assistant principal, I found the Wisdom Corridor Project to be a remarkable opportunity for our students. Witnessing their seamless interaction and genuine engagement was truly heartening. This initiative not only fostered meaningful connections but also instilled a sense of mentorship and friendship among our students, enriching their social and emotional development."

-Bobby Eastwood, Assistant

"Participating in the Wisdom Corridor Project was an enlightening experience as a reading specialist. Witnessing our students engage with their high school counterparts in meaningful career-focused conversations was incredibly rewarding. This initiative not only promoted literacy skills but also empowered our students to envision their future paths with confidence and enthusiasm."

-Sarah, Reading Specialist

"As a gifted teacher, I found the Wisdom Corridor Project to be an invaluable opportunity for our students to explore careers through the RIASEC framework. Watching them share their insights and learn from each other was truly gratifying. This initiative provided a platform for our gifted students to showcase their talents while also fostering collaboration and empathy among their peers."
